Lorne Agricultural Society.

PRIZE LIST.

The Lorne Agricultural Society, although dis-appointing to the directors, who, owing to the very little interest taken in it by many of the farming community of the district, had, at least, some redeeming features. What was exhibited was highly commendable and showed that the fertile sandy loam of this district will do when properly cultivated.

THE ROOTS AND VEGETABLES were very fine, and were greatly admired by all who saw them. The potatoes, beets, mangels, cabbages, pumpkins &c., were of immense size and of most excellent quality. The collection of roots by R. Giles, which carried off the first prize, was only a sample of what the farmers in this district can do, and what many of them do year after year.

THE BUTTER exhibit was good. The competition in this article was keen, and reflects great credit upon the housewives who made such an excellent display of this very necessary article of produce. Among the successful exhibitors were:

HERONS AND MALLARDS were again to the front. This firm made a large and interesting exhibit of herons, mallards, &c., which was greatly admired by every one. Mr. McLean, the manager of the business here, deserves great credit for the enterprise he exhibited, and the deep interest he took in the success of the show.

THE NATIVE GRASSES called forth much wonder and admiration from all who saw them. The principal exhibitors were R. H. May, R. S. Cook, and Wm. Spencer. R. H. May and R. S. Cook, each had over forty varieties, ranging from three to fourteen feet in height. The variety and the solid grass, to such a great extent in this district was over ten feet in height. The exhibit by Mr. Spencer was much admired, but did not have as many varieties as either of the other exhibitors.

THE GRAIN exhibit was a failure owing to the very small exhibit. Mr. Roscoe, of Carleton Place, showed a very fine sample of grain, which could not be better in any country for excellence or quality. This country is well adapted to the raising of this grain so that the rearing and fattening of hogs could be made a very profitable industry in this part of the Saskatchewan valley.

KENYASIAN BEES. made an excellent exhibit of tinware and other articles manufactured here, and showed the firm capacity of manufacturing the very finest and most useful articles in their line of business.

THE LADIES' DEPARTMENT was the most important feature of the exhibition. The display was large and excellent and reflected great credit upon the ladies of this district in the finer and more beautiful arts.

THE STOCK exhibit was not up to former years either in number or in excellence although some fine animals were shown.

WAINWRIGHT BROS. exhibited a fine heavy draught stallion, well suited to cross with the native mares of this country. In the roadster class, Major Donaldson exhibited his travelling station "B.R. by Armstrong." Wm. Plaxton and W. R. Hutchinson each showed a general purpose stallion.

Miss Pritchard was awarded first prize as the best lady rider, but the way in which Miss Wentworth managed her ungovernable steed called forth great admiration.

IN THE STABLE Mr. R. J. Pritchard made a very creditable show in short horn, T. O. Davis showed a very fine imported Holstein bull and J. C. Slater an imported Guernsey bull.
